CONCORDIA HOLDS " INFORMATION FAIR:VOLUNTEERS FOR THE THIRD WORLD"

An information fair, designed to recruit full-time volunteers for work in the Third World, will be held on both campuses of Concordia University beginning November 25.

The term "Third World" is being used in its widest sense and includes not only areas overseas, but the Canadian North and poverty-stricken sections of Montreal as well.

The main feature of the fair will be a series of information booths set up by organizations such as CUSO, Canada World Youth, Frontier College, Frontier Apostolate, Jesuit Missions, Scarboro Missions, Crossroads and Beaver.

The booths will be set up on the Mezzanine of the Sir George Williams Campus Hall Building (1455 de Maisonneuve Blvd. W.) from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. on November 25 and in the Loyola Campus Centre Lounge (7141 Sherbrooke St. W.) from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. on November 29 and 30.

Three films dealing with Third World issues will be shown on those days (times to be announced at Sir George Williams Campus and between noon and 2 p.m. at Loyola Campus): "Last Grave at Dimbaza", a recent film documenting the living and working conditions of blacks and whites in South Africa; "Nynavut, Our Land", presenting the rationale for Inuit land claims in the Canadian North; and "La Plus Belle Vie du Monde" (French with English subtitles), a Quebec film showing some down and out men and women explaining their situation.

The Information Fair will close on December 2 with two panel discussions on the situation in South Africa. The first will take place at noon in the Loyola Campus Centre, and the second, in room 615 of the S.G.W. Hall Building at 7 p.m.

The panel will feature Cecil Abraham, a participant in the liberation movement in South Africa, Richard Cl  roux of the Globe & Mail and John Richmond of the Montreal Star.
